Extrast of a Letter from the Hague, Feb. 25.

Baron de Dieden, envoy extraordinary from the g of Denmark to the Court of Great Britain, paffed tere last Saturday in his way to London.

By a private letter from Rome we have the folng remarkable anecdote. There is a custom a-ig the order of monks called Minimes, on every Year's Day, for the religious to draw lots for a and whatever faint they-draw is to be their paand protector the whole year. The present Pope that order, and when a Cardinal was extremely ched to this old custom, as he has been likewise: he came to the papacy. It happened when they lots this year, that the famous Ignatius Loyola, founder of the Jesuits, was the saint that sell to the of his Holiness. Many people are of opinion, that was not merely the effect of chance, but that some ice was made use of to direct this faint to his Hoin hopes to induce him to espouse the cause of lefuits, in order to ward off the blow which feems. e aimed at them by the King of Spain, who absorbed in the Pope's annihilating that for jety; he French and Spanish ambassadors have become ofely connected of late, that they associate on all flons, and are faid to trahsact no matters of im-ance for their respective courts without previously. ulting each other.

arch 7. A gentleman expressing his surprise to a dat the Smyrna Coffe-house, that so great a ma-y could be found in both Houses to pass the royal age bill, the latter replied, that if the Ministry ght in a bill for annihilating the Christian religion, the Bishops themselves would vote for it, provided they were continued in the possession of their temporalities.

March 9. There is now in Cheshire jail a man, aged near 80, who is to be tried next affizes at Stafford, for a murder committed by him upwards of 20 years ago, at Meir, near Newcastle under Line, by shooting through a window one Walsh, a bailiss, who was going to serve him with a writ; upon which the murderer absconded, and could never be discovered till by mere accident a few days ago.

Part of a letter written by an officer who lately served in Bengal.

" For the fake of my country, and the honour of the English name, I sincerely wish that a thick veil could be drawn over the methods of acquiring fortunes in India for some years past (especially the last seven years) as well as over the monitrous and unconstitutional powers with which our nahohs in that country have been permitted to invest theinselves.

During the period I have just hinted at, our eastern' nabobs possessed the power of doing ill in a greater degree than perhaps was ever known in the annals of time, and let Bengal now declare how they have used it.

In the year 1765, when the prince and father of na-bobs, whose nod, like that which shakes Olympus, could destroy the inhabitants of the earth, shook his awful brow, and faid, "Let there be a monopoly of the ne-cessaries of life, for the benefit of my family and friends," he figned the death warrant for two millions of his fellow creatures! And when he faid, "Let the coin be adulterated," he issued an order for depopulating three thousand villages!

I speak from experience and occular demonstration. I have known Bengal for many years. I have travelled over that country when it was in reality the garden of the world; when the villages were large, populous and flourishing; when the extensive plains were covered with-lowing herds and laughing husbandmen; and when the manufacturer fung unmolefted under every shady tree.

I have fince travelled over that country, when the villages were become the habitations of foxes; when the once fertile plains were become immeasurable wastes, inhabited only by the growling tiger and the howling jackal; and when the few half starved manufacturers, whom rapine and avarice had left, beheld me with jealousy and fear.

This picture is too horrid for reflection; yet, alas, it is never the less true."

March 12. It is said that as soon as the last messenger sent to Copenhagen arrives, all the proceedings relative to the Queen of Denmark and the other prifoners will be published here by authority.

The Earl of Hillsborough had yesterday a grand levee of colony governors, agents, and West-India merchants, at his Lordship's house in Hanover-Square.

March 14. A petition was lately presented to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland from an officer of that kingdom, praying for promotion; in which the petitioner urged, as claims to his Excellency's confideration, "That his brains were knocked out in America, and that he was the father of two orphans, who had not a parent existing to furnish them with the necessaries of life."

Lord Bute feems now again to come into play, his messages are continually passing and repassing from him to Lord North, particularly fince the marriage bill has been in agitation, so there is no doubt but that his influence, though more fecret, is still as powerful as ever. March 17. Providence in general has wifely ordered it; that every father who is a miler should have a son who is a spendthrist. This was never more strongly exemplified than in the case of Lord H—, whose two sons, upon their father's death, are likely to dissipate his immense fortune in half the time he amassed

Letters from Marfeilles mention, that fourteen ships had been loft in the road of Gibraltar, in which number was an English man of war. If the Government does not establish a settlement on the Missisppi, in North America, all the benefits arising from the industry of our fubjects in that part of the world will flow into the coffers of Spain, through the channel of New Orleans; whereas, if a civil establishment takes place, thousands of the back settlers in the old provinces, who are now commercially loft to their mother country, as they confume none of her manu-factures, will immediately remove to the borders of so delightful a river, where they will be again able to renew an intercourse with England, and to make a com-fortable provision for their families. The advantages, however, ariting from the establishment in question; will not terminate here; for an incredible number of foreigners from various parts of Europe are already preparing to embark from the Milliappi, upon the opinion that the wildom of Government must necessarily, grant them protection, and think it better to add to the opulence of Great Beitain, than to increase the firength of an ambitious neighbour, who is at best a jealous rival, and may be (especially if we supinely compliment it with our side of the Missippi) a very dangerous enemy in America.

March 19. A certain amiable Prince, whose reformation gives univerfal fatisfaction, and who has now proved himself not only a man of sense, but, what is infinitely more valuable, a man of principle, declares, that if ever there is a parliamentary dissolution of his marriage, there never shall be a real one, as he is determined never to forfake the lady who is morally his wife, but on the contrary, resolved to shew the most instexible regard to the most facred of all engagements.

The following is a genuine account of what passed between Mr. Charles Fox and Lord North, on Monday Jast, in the House of Commons : Before Mr. Fox entered on the matter in debate (the marriage bill) he faid, that it gave him much pain to be obliged to differ from a Minister, whose general conduct he so much approved, and whose political principles he admired. A Minister, who, with unexampled spinis and resolution, had stood forth in the most critical and dangerous moment, to fave his country from that anarchy and confusion into which it was about to be plunged by factious and ill-defigning men. But that fince, by fome unaccountable fatality, the fame Minister was become the promoter of a bill which feemed big with mitchief, and likely to bring upon the country that very diforder and confusion from which his fermer conduct had rescued it, no consideration of regard or good opinion should prevent him from giving his most determined opposition to every part of the bill in every . flage of its progress. He then entered into the argument, and in the remainder of his speech there was nothing personal to Lord North. When Lord North rose to speak in the course of the debate, he took notice of the debate tice of what Mr. Fox had faid with regard to him, and observed, that he should always lament when a gentleman, of whose abilities and integrity he had to high an opinion, differed from him, and that the manly, open, and spirited manner in which that gentleman had, from the first, communicated to him his objections to the bill, and his intentions of opposing it, had increased instead of lessening the esteem in which he held him.

March 21. Private letters from Warfaw advife, that it has long been a matter of surprise how the Confederates supported themselves notwithstanding their great losses, and it was generally believed that they were privately affisted by some foreign power. This supposi-tion is at length verified, and it is discovered that France has, from time to time, fent them considerable emittances, and continues so to do.

The disturbances raised by the levellers in Ireland are become fo ferious, that a very confiderable reinforcement, it is faid, will be immediately fent from Scotland, to affift in refloring peace to that kingdom.

We have just received information, that a regiment of foot is actually embarked from North Britain on the above service.

March 24. Last night Lord North waited on the able

Duke of Cumberland, at Cumberland House in Pall-, or mall, with whom he had a long conference. A great personage acts now as only commander inDS: chief over the army, the fecretary at war receives his and orders regularly relative to the disposition of commis-Lon-sions and the destination of regiments, so that the whole revenues of the chief commander flow into the royal inr. coffers ; and we can eafily believe these revenues to be 'es. great, when thirty pounds a day at least are allowed 2.

His Majesty has been pleased to confer on the Right Hon. Lord North the blue ribband, vacant by the.

death of the Duke of Saxe Gotha.

The Duke of Holstein Gottorp, uncle to the King of Denmark, is expected very foon in this metropolis; and it is said he will have apartments in Carlton House.

Sunday, about four in the afternoon, there was a violent from of hall and rain, attended with thunder-and lightning, by which the shipping below bridge is ceived much damage. The fame afternoon, in the great ftorm, a boat with a fail was overfet opposite. Chelsea, with three persons in it, two of whom were brothers; one of whom, being an excellent swimmer, kept his brother above water fome time with one arm, beating the waves with the other, until they both funk. The former foon came up alone and fwom a-shore, but two of the three perished. The same afternoon the cangregations in feveral churches were figuck with the utmost terror by the storm during divine service, particularly at St. John's, Horsley Down; when the hailstones breaking some of the windows, a greatpart of the people, in the midst of the sermon, precipitately ran out. Many clokes, cardinals, hats, &c. were lost. The same afternoon Mr. Goodson, a master tailor in Craven Buildings, being at Mr. White-field's chapel in Tottenham Court Road, was struck dead by a flash of lightning.

Yelterday their Graces the Dukes of Manchester and Beaufort had the honour of a private audience of his Majeffy A bill is preparing by those two noblemen to reduce the price of provisions, a plan of which they have presented to his Majesty.

It is reported that some of our men of war have funk a French thip of forty guns in the Mediterranean, for not paying the honours due to the British Flag. March 26. Some expresses of a very great import ar rived at fix o'clock this morning from Sir Joseph'
